COUNTY ATTORNEY IN A ROW

Assistant County Attorney Gunter and Deputy Sheriff Sam Dowse almost came to blows in Timmony's courtroom yesterday afternoon, at the conclusion of the Fish hearing for attempted grand larceny. Gunter accused the deputy of tipping off information to the defense in these cases.

After adjournment, Dowse demanded an explanation.

A point was raised in the trial concerning Fish's reputation. Detective Sheets being called up stairs by Mr. Gunter to prove that the defendant had been arrested before. Dowse overheard the conversation in the hall, before the courtroom was entered, in which Sheets said a complaint had been sworn out for Fish on one occasion. Attorney Hamilton said to Dowse: "Sheets don't know anything about it, does he?" and Dowse replied: "Yes,"

defense in these cases.'

After adjournment, Dowse demanded an explanation.

"I meant just what I said," was Gunter's reply. "You and the sheriff and the whole lot give the other side tips on these police cases."

Hamilton was called to adjudicate matters. He repeated what Dowse had said to him, and Gunter replied fiatly that he didn't believe either of them. Finally Dowse called Gunter a liar. The latter retorted angrily, and it is said "dukes" were raised when an officer stepped in and the men cooled down. FOUND BY A SALT LAKE BOY, MEET IN NINTH WARD ANNEX

The cache of a coin counterfeiter was discovered by a lad last Friday on Thirteenth East street, close to an abandoned camp fire near the state prison, and yesterday the boy brought the plunder to the sheriff's office. The little mint was partly enclosed in a small mustard can and partly in a piece of mattress cloth, and the only thing that would possibly afford a clue to the bad money maker, or as to how his "mill run" came to be cached where it was found, is a piece of an unknown groceryman's delivery check billed to "Mrs. Tibbey.
